NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MAY 22, 1889.

PRICE ONE CENT.

Mrs. Harriet Hubbard Aver's Children Estranged from Her.

She Suffered from Hemorrhage of the Lungs and Insomnia.

She Claims She Will Produce 29 Forged Cable Messages in Court.

The suit of Mrs. Harriet Hubbard Ayer against James Seymour, Allen Lewis Seymour, his son, and her daughter, Mrs. Allen Seymour, grows more sensational with every hour.

One side alleges an elaborate conspiracy, attempted poisoning, forgery, theft and what not, while the other side treat these charges with contemptuous disdain and smiling, tap their foreheads to intimate that the plaintiff is not of sound mind. Both parties were in court again yesterday.

Mrs. Ayer made a sweeping denial of the statement of the elder Seymour that she gave him the Recamier stock in remuneration for his services with the Recamier Company. Mrs. Ayer was seen at the Victoria Hotel. She seems particularly indignant at Miss Blanche Willis Howard, whom she describes as a false willis Howard, whom she describes as a laise friend.

"Any one who knows me," she said, "knows what a grief and trouble this has been to me. By children have been to me my very life, and my daughter Margaret, to whom I gave a home as a wedding present when she was married last November, has not been allowed to see me. My little girl has not been allowed to write to me in eight weeks from Stuttgart.

"I was threatened that the thumbacrews would be put on me if I uttered a murmur, and this is one of the ways of applying them.

"I most emphatically deny that I was sent away to be cured of the morphine habit, and Dr. George Shrady positively asserts that he did not send me to Europe to becured of the alcohol habit. I was suffering from hemorrhage of the lungs and insomnia.

Those were terrible days in Stuttgart. I was dosed with salfonal continuously, and a continuance of the treatment would have driven me insane.

Forged cable messages were sent me to keep me in Stuttgart as long as possible, but with the aid of my faithful maid I frustrated with the aid of my faithful maid I frustrated sheir motives.

"What an absurd statement that is to the effect that I drank tooth wash and heliotrope. I have all the evidence necessary to prove all my assertions, and when the cable messages—there are twenty-five of them—are read in court the other side will open their eyes."

Mrs. Ayer seems perfectly earnest and rational in her statements.

Mr. James Seymour pooh-poohs the whole affair.

He admits entering into a conspiracy to send Mrs. Ayer away, but says it was to cure her of the alcohol habit. He ridicules the idea of poisoning, and brands the statement that he took papers from a tin box as an absolute lie.

He defice Dr. Pinkham to produce the forged letter with which he is alleged to have procured valuable papers belonging to Mrs. Ayer from the decire. the dector.

In short, he denies the whole thing, and says he will fight the matter out to the bitter end, now that these charges have been made.

HIS CRIME INVITED DEATH.

Dickson Did Not Get Very Far Away Before He Was a Case for the Coroner.

[RPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] BIRMINGHAM, Als., May 22.—About 3 o'elock yesterday morning Miss Keene, a beautiful girt of eighteen years, who is staying at the residence of her uncle. Col. Daniel Hickman. at Walnut Grove, was aroused by a choking sensation, and was almost unconscious, when sensation, and was almost unconscious, when with a desperate effort, she caught and struck a match which she had placed on a table beside her bed. She recognised her assailant as Noah Dickson, a negro boy of twenty who had been employed about the place. Just then Col. Hickman, who sleeps in an adjoining room, awoke, and hearing a noise in his noice's room, entered just as the negro was leaving. He grappled with the intruder, but the latter was too strong for him and escaped. Col. Hickman notified his neighbors and by daylight the entire town was out.

About noon County Treasurer Hawkins and Bayliss Hickman encountered the negro in the woods near Powderly and arrested him. About half way back to Wainut Grove the negro broke from them, but their pistols soon brought him down dead. They left him in the road where he fell, came to this city and gave themselves up. They were tried and discharged.

The Well Was Poisoned.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 22.—Some unknown miscreant placed a large quantity of poison, the character of which has not yet been ascertained. in the well on the farm of A. H. Hayden, six miles from Valley Centre, Sedgewick County, miles from Valley Centre, Sedgewick County, Kan,, last Sunday. That evening Hayden and two cows and two steers were made terribly sick and the cattle died next morning. Next morning the hired man was attacked, but recovered after ejecting the poison. Soon afterwards Hayden's daughter, aged fifteen, was seized with convulsions, and a few minutes later the mother and the hired girl were taken down and two horses died after intense suffering. Hayden will recover, but the three women are likely to die.

STARTED BY AN EXPLOSION OF CHEMICALS UNDER THE SIDEWALK.

Smoke was seen issuing from Hegeman & Co.'s drug store, No. 203 Broadway, at 6 o'clock this

An alarm was quickly sent out, and half a dozen engines were quickly on the scene. They soon discovered that the fire was in a small closet or vanit built under the sidewalk. There was a considerable quantity of chemicals and drugs stored away in this little apartment and the firemen were charry of exposing themselves to danger.

A rew minutes work extinguished the flames and limited the damage to $100. The fire was caused by a slight explosion among the drugs and chemicals.

Hegeman & Co. were visited by fire about two years ago at the same place. While the firemen were lighting the flames an immense explosion occurred. It blew out the window glasses and scattered the pieces far and wide. When the excitement subsided it was found that one of the firemen had been killed.

NOT BRIBED WITH A HAM.

At the Same Time the Lettery-Road Dealers Were Grateful to Mr. Dierkes.

St. Louis. Mo., May 22.—Bernard Dierkes, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of the Court of CriminalCorrection, was seen yesterday in regard to that present of a Westphalia ham made to him by A. Neuberg, the St. Louis representative of E. H. Horner, the European lottery-bond dealer, as described in last Sunday's WORLD. The present was received soon after Dierkes had passed favorably upon the genuineness of one of the bonds, which had been referred to him by the Police Department, the intention having been to prosecute Neuberg criminally.

been to prosecute Neuberg criminally.

Mr. Dierkes said: "Neuberg and I are members of the same bowling club and card club, and meet very often. He has at times asked me in a friendly way about legal points and I have given him advice. One night we met at the Club, and, in talking about things generally, he said: 'I am going to send to Horner to get you a Westphalis ham; he is going to get me one and I'll tell him to get one for you at the same time. I said: 'That is very kind of you,' and dropped the matter. I never thought of it again until one day I found at my house a Westphalis ham and a box of cigars. I was worried, for I do not like anything of that kind, and I went to a mutual friend and said: 'Tell Neuberg that while I think he meant all right, I hope he won't do anything of that kind, and I went to a mutual friend and said: 'Tell Neuberg that while I think he meant all right, I hope he won't do anything of that kind, and I went to a mutual friend and said: 'This friend told Neuberg and the next time we met Neuberg and the next time we het Neuberg and they next ime we het Neuberg and they next ime we het Neuberg and they next received any present but this ham and box of cigars, and surely no one will believe that if I would take a bribe I could be bonght with a ham.

WIFE AND CHILD ON GUARD.

Spirited Shooting on a Wickita Street Four Persons Hit by Bullets.

ISPECIAL TO THE WORLD, 1 WICHITA, May 22 .- W. S. Slattery yesterday met James Stines on the street. Words were exchanged as to Slattery's having killed Stines a chickens. Slattery attempted to draw his revolver but Stines was too quick for him and fired, hitting him in the breast. Slattery then dropped his revolver and, closely pursued by Stines, ran down Main street, which was crowded with people and vehicles, firing repeatedly as he ran. Slattery, weak from loss of peatedly as he ran. Slattery, weak from loss of blood, dropped at a hotel entrance and was carried within. In his agony he had torn off his clothes and his body, pierced by five balls, was covered with blood.

In the mean time a crowd gathered in pursuit of Stines, who, while holding it back at the point of his revolver, reached his home. There his wife with the revolver that had already done the bloody work, and his child with a shotgun, guarded the front entrance while he escaped through the rear door. The mob, seeing him leave the house, resumed the chase. Escape now being impossible, Shines rushed up to the first officer he met and begged his protection. He was taken to the jail, followed by the angry crowd, who say they will hang him before his trial comes off. Besides the fatal wounds of that they have the house, resumed the day him before his trial comes off. Besides the fatal wounds of the side of the say that and a child Slattery one woman, a colored man and a child were injured by Stine's firing on the street.

Webster has no adjectives in his lexicon wherewith to express the happiness and pride of the agents of the luman Line in this city. The City of Paris now has only her own record to beat. The log of the fleet ship shows the following entries for the six-day passage:

Then Roche's Point.

Ninety-one passengers were landed at Queens-town, and while the reader' is scanning The Eventso Wonto the rest are specifing over the railroads of Old England to their several points of destination, and most of them will enjoy their dinners to-night at their final stopping maccas.

their dinners to-night at their final stopping places.

The new Maud S. of the seas carried away from this city last Wednesday 7.50 saloon passengers. Among them was Robert T. Lincoln, on his way to take up his duties as the representative of the United States at the Court of St. James. He was accompanied by Mrs. Lincoln, the Misses Lincoln and Naster Abraham Lincoln. Andrew Carnegie, wife and son were also among the passengers, and Gon. Lloyd Bryce, who is to conduct the North American Review by the wish of his friend, Minister Allen Thorndike Rice, who died the day following that on which the City of Paris sailed.

Other passengers were Mrs. William Appleton, ir., Charles Bigelow, Mrs. Bryce, Arthur Brishane, Frank Leslie, Anson Phelps Stokes, R. L. Hargous, Miss Hargous, and W. Jennings Demorest.

When two weeks ago the veteran ocean sailor Capt. Frederick Watkins received, with becoming modest pride, the congratulations of his friends and admirers upon the wonderful feat of his gallant ship in making the passage from Queenstown to New York in 5 days, 23 hours and 7 minutes he promised that if it was in the ship he should beat all records on the backward trip, and he has done it.

For many moons the Cunard Line people have held their heads high, for the Etruria's passage of 6 days, 1 hour, 55 minutes was the fastest westward trip and no other ship had ever approached the Umbria's record for the eastward voyage, 6 days, 2 hours, 22 minutes.

Vernon H. Brown, the agent here, never tired of talking "records." But this morning he was "not in "when a reporter called at his office.

"Has the City of Paris beaten the Umbria's record, can you tell?" asked a gentle reporter of a young man who was in.

"I am afraid she has, "was the lugubrious response. "But," he added "the Umbria and Etruria have always encountered unfavorable weather every time they have ever undertaken to make a record going cast, and we believe they can either one of them down the time of the City of Paris with constantly favoring winds and weather, such as she seems to have had on this passage."

On her record-breaking westward passage the City of Paris performed the remarkable and unprecedented speed of nearly twenty-two miles an hour during the entire trip. On this trip her speed was within a fraction of a fraction of twenty miles an hour.

These achievements of the City of Paris, a new vessel, are the source of wouder to shipping men. They indicate remarkable staying powers, and it is now believed that the new racer will some day make the transatlantic voyage in five and a half days or even less.

TROTTING AT FLEETWOOD.

THE NEW YORK DRIVING CLUB'S MEETING TO BEGIN TO-DAY.

There Were Several Impromptu Races Yesterday for Wine Stakes-The Track Is Now in Excellent Condition-Three Races to Be Run and Exciting Contests Looked For-The List of Entries.

The New York Driving Club bore the postponement of its trotting races at Fleetwood Park with much equanimity and good nature. Now the members are glad of the delay, for the track this afternoon will be in good condition and the time faster than if they had determined to hold to yesterday as opening day—as many of those interested urged them to do.

It has been the custom for years past, so the wags declare, for those people who follow the affairs at Fleetwood to expect rain when races are announced to occur there. If this is true. they have not been disappointed yet this season Despite the fact that most persons heard of the Committee's action in postponing the openthe Committee's action in postponing the opening day in time not to expect any racing, yet there were many horsemen present at the track yesterday, iresistibly attracted as moths to a lighted candle. They were rewarded by seeing some fine spins around the track.

Who drove? Well, there were C. Vanderbilt Cross, with his pet team; W. H. Waldron, with bay filly and ditto gelding, and "Standard Oil" Rockefeller, with his dashing blacks, Midnight and Flash.

He spun around the track as if the road were aspiralt instead of inacadamized water and mud.

The spirits of the trotting cranks gathered there were exhibitated to such a pitch by the sight of the usiny speedy trotters flitting around, that the temptation to indulge in some imprompturaces was too strong to be resisted.

The stakes, generously divided by the winners with the lovers, were champagne by the basketful and cigars ad libitum. And the stakes, in many instances, were divided immediately after the trotters had kicked up the mud in gay competition down the homestretch.

many instances, were divided immediately after the frotters had kicked in the mul in gay competition down the homestretch.

So there was no lack of cheerfulness even if the skiss had sulked and glowered all the morning and then vente! their feelings by soaking the ground with tears.

Secretary George Floyd-Jones beamed upon the assemblage in commany with President Hemmond and Treasurer Raymond. D. P. I a rin; t. who rules things at the Hudson River Luiving Park, conferred with them about the best way to manage trotting events.

J. G. K. Lawrence, the energetic Secretary of the Coney Island Jockey Club, and Secretary of the Coney Island Jockey Club, and Secretary Fred A. Lawrenatt, of the American Jockey Club, were flitting about, hitner and thither, as chipper as could be.

The athletic figure of Johnny Murphy, he of the relay-of-horses fame, was darting everywhere about the scene of his great victory over the redoubtable Californian. Anderson.

Inspector Byrnes Announces a Deep-Laid Plot to Pull Him Down.

Great Political Conspiracy.

That Big Wilkinson Bill for Detective Services Used as a Blind.

Col. Fellows Also Says Startling Disclosures are Coming.

The Prisoner Taken to Court and Held On Two Indictments.

When Inspector Byrnes starts out on the warpath with blood in his eye it is safe to predict that some one is going to get pretty badly hurt. The Inspector means business this time, and the events which led up to the indictment and arrest last evening of Private Detective Frank Templeman, for an attempt to implicate him. ogether with District-Attorney Fellows and together with District-Attorney Fellows and Detective J. E. Wilkinson, in an alleged plot to defraud the city the city out of $5.047 the amount of Wilkinson's bill for detective services in the "boodle" trials, have apparently disclosed a compiracy which the Inspector believes was aimed against himself alone.

At any rate, he is the most indignant man in town this morning, and when a reporter of The Evenns World met him at Police Headquarters shortly after his arrival there he promised to make some revelations later on that would show up some prominent city officials in anything but a favorable light.

"This man Templeman is merely a tool in the hands of other people," said the Inspector.

"I am confident of that, for the Commissioners of Accounts would never have heard of him or sent for him if there had not been some onceles to first put them on the track of the story or suggest it to them.

"I know who these people are, and I know why they wish to attack me. Here is a nice sort of investigation. A fellow comes in and tells the Commissioner of Accounts that he saw checks in Wilkinson's office addressed to me.

"Instead of sending for Wilkinson's checkbook to prove the truth of the statement they city try to make a scandal out of it to injure the company of the same tells me himself that he heard."

Why, this man tells me himself that he heard "Why, this man tells me himself that he heard them say down in the Commissioner's Office that they only wanted to get something to 'pull Byrnes down.' That's the secret of the whole thing, but they will find that they have got to get me very early in the morning to get the best of me in any such game as that.

"It goes away back to the boodle times, and I can lay my hands right on the parties who are responsible for this plot. I think I can fight any man who began his public career as a betty larceny thief and who nowonly wants to get into a big steel.

any man who began his public esteer as a beity larceny thief and who now only wants to get into a big steal.

"What I say I would be willing to say from the City Itall steps and then let the people judge for themselves. I defy any man to point to a single act of dishonesty in my official or private conduct, and a dirty, contemptible scheme like this to injure me makes me mad. I am going to show them up, and they will find that it isn't going to be so easy a matter to 'pull Byrnes down as they imaxine."

The Inspector spoke in the most vigorous and emphatic manner, and did not attempt to minne matters. There was a look of fierce determination in his eye, and people around Headquarters, who know him to be usually the caimest and most serene individual in the world even under the mast trying circumstances, were sinezed at the feeling he displayed when he talked of the case.

He added that there was a good deal of politics at the bottom of the matter, and that he proposed to show up every man connected with the "villainous scheme."

District-Attorney Fellows visited Headquar-ters early this morning before going to his office. He was closeted with the Chief Inspector hearly an hour.

When he came out he said in answer to an in-

When he came out he said in answer to an inquiry:

"We have authentic infermation that this is a deeply laid scheme and dates back for some time. This man Templeman is only a catepaw in the hands of other people who wish to injure Inspector Byrnes and myself.

"I know who those people are, and I can say that it is certain that other arrests will follow when the matter has been sufficiently probed. We intend to make a searching investigation, and not one who was engaged in this conspiracy will escape. I cannot give any names now, for it would perhaps defeat the ends of instice. They will come out soon enough."

It was stated that at least two of the people who are behind Templeman in this conspiracy are city officials who occupy prominent positions. Rumors were flying around thick and fast at the City Hali this morning, and a good many names were mentioned in a mysterious way.

Templeman, who passed the night in the factions. Rumors were flying around thick and fast at the City Hali this morning, and a good many names were mentioned in a mysterious way.

Templeman, who passed the night in the famous Aldermanic cell, No. 6, at Police Headquarters, was interviewed by the Chief Inspector, and presumably put through the "third degree." It is said that he has made a clean breast of everything and given away all the principals in the conspiracy.

When he was arraigned in General Sessions this morning before Recorder Smyth he looked very rale, but seemed cool and collected and showed no signs of nervousness.

He is a young man about thirty years old, of slight build, brown hair and blue eyes, and wears a dark brown nustache.

There are two indictments against him, both of which bare as witcesses Commissioners Holahan and Barker, Arthur B. Conway, Edward M. Brocken, John E. Wilkinson, Inspector Byrnes and Col. Fellows.

The first indictment charges Templeman with attempted grand larceny in the first degree by trying to obtain $1,000 from the city under false pretenses.

It recites the fact that Templeman represented to the Commissioners of Accounts that he knew of the existence of a copartnership between District-Attorney Fellows. Inspector Byrnes and Frivate Detective John E. Wilkinson, in whose employ he formerly way, by which the Inspector and District-Attorney shared in the profits of Wilkinson's business; that he knew other men, Conway and Brocken, who would swear that they also had knowledge of this alleged copartnership and could prove it, and that he stempted to sell this information to the city for $1,000, whereas his statements were all false and without foundation.

The other indictment, which has two counts. charges Templeman with felony, under Section 113 of the Pensi Code, in offering Conway $5.00 to swear falsely that he knew of the existence of the alleged copartnership. As no perjury was actually committed, there would be no indictment for subordination.

Templeton pleaded not gillity to both indictments and said he

JOHN DUGAN IS MISSING.

HIS YOUNG WIFE ALMOST CRAZED AND RED BANK MUCH DISTURBED.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. RED BANK, May 22.—There is a mystery sur-rounding the sudden disappearance of young Templeman, He Says, Is But a Tool in a John Dugan, of this place, which Chief-of-ing to solve.

For a year or so Dugan, who is only eighteen years of age, courted Miss Mary Harrow, of Hedden's Corner, in Middletown township.

About two menths ago Dugan's ardor for Miss Harrow began to cool, when matters were brought to a crisis by Dugan being compelled to marry the girl, who was just budding sixteen years.

The Rev. Father James Kane, of St. James's Roman Catholic Church, performed the marriage on the eve of his departure in the company of the other Catholic clergy who are making the pilurimage to Rome.

Dugan seemed to take his marriage happily. Henting a cosy little home on Parker's road, on the Eatontown turnpike, Dugan furnished it nicely, and up to Friday last everything went along as merrily as a marriage bell.

On that morning Dugan, who seemed to be in the best of spirits, bade his young wife an affectionate good-by and gave her a kiss as he departed cheerfully to perform his day's work at a near-by farm owned by John Byers.

Working all day, in the evening Dugan left the Byers farm, presumably to go home.

That was the last seen of him in lied Bank.
Search has been made everywhere for the young man without avail.

The young wite, left in almost destitute circumstances, is almost crazed with grief, and had to be taken to her father's house. She fears that her husband has met with foul play.

Disclosures in the Faulkner Trial. ROCHESTER, May 22. In the Faulkner trial yesterday James Faulkner was recalled, and in his cross-examination testified: "I made up my mind the bank was in a precarious state about 1884. I told the bookkeeper not to post the de-1884. I told the bookkeeper not to post the details of certain accounts. They were my own, Lester B. Faulkner's, Mr. Kuhn's, Mr. Whitehead's and Mr. Williams's," He knew the banks reports were false and he swore to them. He knew Lester B. Fanikner had signed false reports knowing them to be false. He had often signed Williams's name to false reports. The witness was then questioned regarding the removal of the books from the bank at night. He said he had no light, but got all the books he could get hold of. He did not take the new set of books, because that would have left the receiver and officers in bat shape. He took a good wagon-load of the books and what papers he could get hold of.
